In celebration of International Education Week, the VCU Global Education Office is pleased to present the following film series.

Saturday, November 12: Ramchand Pakistani – Based on a true story, this film depicts a Pakistani Hindu family’s anguish after a young boy accidentally crosses the Pakistan-Indian border during a period of war-like tension in this disputed region.

Sunday, November 13: A Separation – Winner of the 2012 Academy Award for Best Foreign Language Film, this movie is a humanizing depiction of the struggles that arise following a couple’s decision to separate in modern-day Iran.

Monday, November 14: No – This Academy Award-nominated film captures the advertising campaign designed to oust the Chilean military dictator, Augusto Pinochet, during a national referendum in 1988.

Thursday, November 17: Omar – Set in the West Bank, this Academy Award-nominated film illustrates the Israeli-Palestinian conflict and the brutality that a group of young Palestinian friends face within their community.

All films will be shown at 7:30 p.m., followed by a discussion, in the West Grace North Residence Hall (830 W. Grace St.), Room 1030J.
