2024 FALL GLOBAL INITIATIVES MASTER CLASS SERIES: Global Engagement Strategies

Fundamentals of Designing a COIL or Global Learning Doesn't Just Happen

December 10, 2024

11 a.m. - 1 p.m.

Student Commons - Richmond Salons III-IV

This interactive workshop will explore the crucial role of campus-based English language programs in advancing international education. Sector-specific data from the global English language program industry will be shared, focusing on trends relevant to potential initiatives. The audience will participate in discussions of multiple key areas where collaborative efforts with the English language program can enhance the teaching and learning experience for the entire campus community as well as support broader, more strategic internationalization efforts.

University of Denver

About the facilitator:

Casey Dinger deeply values the transformative power of understanding others' perspectives and experiences in critically analyzing internalized belief systems and positionality. His passion for intercultural and global learning informs daily practice in centering critical feeling in teaching, faculty development and research in internationalization at home. In addition to his role at the University of Denver, he is the co-advisor for the U.S. Student Fulbright Program. Casey has worked in higher education institutions in both Minnesota and Colorado, receiving a doctorate in Comparative and International Development Education from the University of Minnesota.

The Global Initiatives Master Class Series is a workshop series offered by the Global Education Office to deans, associate deans, faculty and staff. The workshops are designed to provide support, recommendations and guidance about engaging international and domestic students in global engagement activities. Coordinated by Jill Blondin, Ph.D. Associate Vice Provost for Global Initiatives Virginia Commonwealth University, the series is in its second year of development.
