In celebration of International Education Week, we invite you to join our highlight event, the "LEaDing Students to Success" webinar to explore internationality in the professional world and how to empower students’ skill sets and prepare them to be global citizens.

Special guest speakers, Olympic Gold Medalist, Katie Nageotte, and Sant’Anna alum and Italian-American social entrepreneur, Caroline Caporossi, will share their stories on how overcoming challenges in their global experiences has impacted their successful careers. Their stories are sure to inspire a world of possibilities that international engagement and persistence can lead to.

Register here to participate in the webinar, and stay tuned on our website and social media to follow the full week of events.

TOPICS
- How to set SMART GOALS
- Increasing SELF-AWARENESS
- Effective COMMUNICATION STYLES
- Giving & Receiving FEEDBACK
- Valuing CULTURAL AWARENESS
- Stages of TEAMWORK
- PERSONAL BRANDING & how to highlight your SKILLS

GUEST SPEAKERS

Kathryn Nageotte is a 30 year-old American pole vaulter, originally from Cleveland, Ohio. She graduated from Olmsted Falls High School with a state record in pole vault and was also the 2009 Division I state champion. During her studies at Ashland University, she studied Fashion abroad in Paris as well as won the NCAA Division II national championship. While at the University of Dayton she also took gold at the indoor and outdoor Atlantic 10 Conferences. After officially turning professional in 2013, she has competed around the world and was signed by Adidas 2016-2018 and by Nike since 2018. This year she won the gold medal in women's pole vault at the 2020 Summer Olympics.

Caroline Caporossi is a 27-year old Italian-American social entrepreneur and founder of the Association for the Integration of Women (AIW), a non-profit organization dedicated to migrant womens’ integration in Modena, Italy. Caroline grew up in a third-generation Italian immigrant household in the United States. At University she specialized in International Relations and Spanish, and she began her career advocating to increase services for the Latino community in Washington D.C and South Carolina. Upon graduation in 2016, she relocated to Modena, Italy where for the last three years she has served as the Program Development Officer at Food for Soul, the international nonprofit founded by Chef Massimo Bottura.